

National Alliance for Children and Youth
L'Alliance nationale pour l'enfance et la jeunesse

2007 - 2008
Annual Report

The new National Alliance for Children and Youth – L'Alliance nationale pour l'enfance et la jeunesse (NACY) is an incorporated not-for profit organization that has been created to continue the work of the informal National Children's Alliance – Alliance nationale pour les enfants which began in 1996.

NACY Goals and Objectives

The new National Alliance for Children and Youth – L’Alliance nationale pour l’enfance et la jeunesse (NACY) is an incorporated not-for profit organization that has been created to continue the work of the informal National Children’s Alliance – Alliance nationale pour les enfants which began in 1996.

By bringing diverse not-for-profit organizations together in a collaborative network dedicated to enhancing the well-being of children and youth in Canada, NACY will provide leadership and knowledge dedicated to mobilizing and linking practice and research to policy development on a pan-Canadian basis.

The purpose of the National Alliance for Children and Youth is to promote the health and well-being of children and youth in Canada in ways that are beneficial to the community, by means of the following:

- Facilitating the active participation and collaboration of its Members and others in the development of consensus on policies, programs and practices that improve outcomes for children and youth;
- Promoting public awareness and understanding on issues relating to the health and well-being of children and youth;
- Providing public education regarding children, youth, and families;
- Conducting and disseminating research into trends and issues affecting children, youth and families;
- Developing, encouraging, and improving opportunities for national and international skill development and knowledge transfer among individuals, organizations, and groups in support of children and youth;
- Developing and promoting a public policy agenda in support of these objects.

To carry out these objects, NACY is seeking funding from a variety of sources including governments, foundations, corporations, and individuals.

Message from the Chair

Reflecting on the work of the National Alliance for Children and Youth over the past year I have to conclude that our greatest single achievement has been to survive as an organization. During a period of reduced funding sources where we have witnessed the downsizing and even elimination of many of our members we have been fortunate to continue to receive the support and confidence of so many colleagues.

Relying on the fees provided by our member agencies and the volunteer efforts of our Board of Directors the Alliance has maintained a presence on the national scene. We have continued to pursue additional funding sources, participated on national advisory committees and at national forums, and collaborated with others on the promotion of the rights of children and youth in this country.

The Alliance will continue to advocate for capacity-building in the not-for-profit sector and the development of policy and programs for children and youth. Both are critical elements of a national framework for promoting the health and success of young people in our society.

I would like to make special mention of the contributions made by our staff. Jill Heckman who served as our coordinator left us in May. We welcomed Amanda Mayer to our team in June. Both have done a great job ensure the viability and visibility of NACY with limited time and finances.

I give much thanks to all of our Board members who take time from their busy lives to support our Alliance's efforts. I am particularly appreciative for the commitment of past board member Nichole Downer and our new "youth" board members Ben O'Bright and Ilana Lockwood who together have produced our popular e-digest. I continue to find this a wonderful source of information about what is happening in Canada and one that is easily shared with my staff and colleagues. John Staple, Jennifer Dickson, and Rosaline Ryan will be completing their terms on the Board this year. It has been a pleasure to work alongside them on behalf of NACY.

In an interview I gave earlier this year I was asked "What do members get for their membership fees with NACY." My reply was that participation in an Alliance such as NACY is not about receiving membership benefits. In fact, many of our members are associations that provide an excellent range of benefits to their membership. Rather, participation in the Alliance is about making a contribution along with other like-minded individuals and organization to a jointly-held vision and mission of improving the lives of children and youth in Canada.

NACY will continue to exist and to grow through the contribution of time, energy, insight and expertise of its members. I encourage everyone to consider how they can enhance their contribution over the coming years to strengthen the impact we can have on behalf of our children and youth.

Over the past two years it has been my privilege to make a small contribution to the Alliance as its Chairperson. As I complete my term of service, I thank all of you for your support and wish the Alliance much success with its future endeavors.

Promoting the health and well-being of Canada's children and youth is critical to our future as a country. Please continue to support the Alliance efforts to keep us focused on this important mission. Thank you.
